BENEFITS OF MENTORING

- Having a one-on-one relationship with a faculty or staff member who is devoted to your personal, educational and career development
- Gain assistance navigating through the challenges and opportunities unique to veterans, on returning to college
- Preparing you for the civilian workplace to reach your full potential
- Building camaraderie with fellow students and veterans

A TYPICAL RELATIONSHIP WITH YOUR MENTOR WOULD ENTAIL THE FOLLOWING:

- Building trust and maintaining confidentiality
- Meeting in person or virtually on a regular basis
- Exploring and developing your educational and career goals
- Guidance to college resources available to help achieve your goals

SUCCESSFUL MENTORING IS FOUNDED ON KEY PRINCIPLES

- Both the mentor and mentee (student) should communicate and respect each other’s time
- Both should share responsibility for the relationship
- Both should be flexible and exchange information while maintaining confidentiality at all times
- Both should be sensitive to differences in race, gender, backgrounds, and experience
